About this experience

This two-day tour runs from Colombo into Sri Lanka's hill country, travelling with a private chauffeur guide throughout. The route takes in Kandy's Temple of the Sacred Tooth Relic and a working tea factory before climbing to the highland town of Nuwara Eliya, known to the British as 'Little England'. The second day is built around Horton Plains National Park, with its grasslands, cloud forest and the World's End escarpment, before the return drive to Colombo.

Travellers get a compact introduction to the hill country's mix of culture, tea heritage and highland scenery, with stops chosen to cover a religious landmark, a tea plantation and a national park trek in a short span of time.

The tour is private throughout, with two 500 ml water bottles per person per day included. Hotel accommodation, meals and site entrance fees are arranged separately and are not included. Minimum age for travellers is 12.

Tea Factory

A visit to a working tea factory and plantation shows how Ceylon Tea is made. Tea was first planted in Sri Lanka's Royal Botanical Gardens in Peradeniya in 1824, and commercial cultivation began when James Taylor, a British settler, established plantations at the Loolecondara estate in Kandy from 1852.

Day 2 Nuwara Eliya \u2192 Horton Plains \u2192 Colombo

The second day is spent at Horton Plains before the drive back down to Colombo.

Horton Plains National Park

The park's montane grasslands and cloud forest lead to the World's End escarpment, with views across the island, and to Baker's Falls. The plains are home to a range of endemic fauna and sites of archaeological interest. After the trek, you return to the hotel to check out and continue on to Colombo.
